Son of a Prepper: The Basics. What & Why (The Son of a Prepper Series Book 1) I.B. Preppin Seen the news in the U.S. lately?

Full-scale riots forcing innocent residents to hunker down in their own homes. Floods in Louisiana and Texas causing people to have to evacuate in a hurry. Hurricanes, blizzards, earthquakes, forest fires, chemical-carrying trains derailing, threats of violence from terrorists, water contamination, etc... It's every single day, folks. Mother Nature is pissed. And the world's gone crazy.

Be prepared for it.

Son of a Prepper is a non-fiction short guide that explains why and how the normal, typical American is now rushing to be prepared for any and all disasters. When that unexpected emergency or disaster hits, are you prepared to quickly leave your home? If the grocery store shelves are empty, can you feed your family? If the power goes out, will you have a way to shit, shower and shave? Are you ready to protect your family? Is your family ready to protect you?

This is a prepper guide for beginner preppers—not a survivalist guide. What's the difference? Well, a prepper tries to prepare with enough modern conveniences so that the life they know won't come to an end if those conveniences aren't readily available through conventional channels.

A survivalist purposely journeys off into the woods with nothing except a few basic items and survives. You can drop them in the desert with nothing but boots and a bag of flour and they'll walk out of there carrying a biscuit. They got skilz...

Sorry gang, but I'm not a survivalist. I like comfort and warm showers. I like hot food... and lots of it. I have no desire to eat grass or start a fire by rubbing two sticks together.

I just wanted to clarify that in case some of y'all were expecting some nifty little survivalist scenarios and tips here... Sorry, but I intend to survive by preparing... now known as prepping.

Nothing wrong with the survivalists; I have quite a few friends that do this type of thing and hope they're around when and if ever the shit hits the fan. I'll share my biscuits with them if I run out of fire and they want to magically produce some flames from their fingers. Sure. Bring it, Bear Gryllis-types. Y'all are welcome at my campfire anytime.

For those of you not intending on becoming a survivalist, get a punch-shot of advice on how to get started prepping; what to do first, what you'll need, and why... from the son of a prepper—who was prepping way before prepping was cool.

Follow these quick and dirty tips to get started on being prepared. Subjects include: The Basics, Buggin' Out, Protection, Medic Preps, Money & Bartering, American Privileges, a complete Bug-Out Bag checklist and a peek at his First Aid Prep Checklist, as well as just some good 'ole chewing the fat explaining how, why and when he became a 'prepper.'

Don't let a disaster catch you unprepared. And don't depend on the government. Depend only upon yourself. Be self-reliant. Start today.
