- Include an up-to-date bibliography of works by and about Longfellow

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow (1807-1882) is considered the "uncrowned poet laureate" of 19th-century America, and by some the finest poet in American history. He wrote more than four hundred poems, including such classics as Paul Revere's Ride and The Song of Hiawatha. Longfellow was the most popular poet and the most famous American of the nineteenth century. His popularity has not diminished since. He has been cherished by generations of readers, including President Theodor Roosevelt, who considered Longfellow his favorite poet, and his works have lost none of their appeal to a modern audience.

Lexicos Publishing is proud to present this definitive edition of his complete poetical works, based on the authoritative six-volume paper edition. It has been meticulously edited and formatted for Kindle. It includes an active table of contents and is fully searchable.

"One of the very few in our time who has successfully aimed in putting poetry to its best and sweetest uses."
The New Yorker
